What do you do?

Manpower®

Walk. Run.

Business owners used to be able to find capable employees just by walking down the street. Today, companies are in a race to find and secure top talent from a much larger pool. And letting up for just a second can mean missing out on the best candidates.

Fortunately, Manpower's permanent placement consultants are running 24/7. They're always searching for the right people for multiple jobs and industries.

Just because you have the know-how doesn't mean you have the time. And that's when you call the experts.

People are becoming more mobile between jobs. As a result, recruitment is costing businesses more time, energy and money. Manpower's permanent placement services help companies save on all three. We have the knowledge and resources needed to engage passive and active candidates – whether they're in town or across the country – to efficiently find the talented people who help businesses succeed.

"Manpower has successfully taken the burden of advertising, prescreening, behavioral interviewing, reference checking and assessments away from our already short-staffed HR department. To date, our supervisors have interviewed 105 candidates and have made offers to 80, which shows the quality of candidates this process has provided.

It has been great working with a company that provides and consistently maintains exceptional service and attention to detail. It is the success that we have had [with Manpower] that has motivated us to contact other Manpower offices to help us staff various locations of BAE Systems."

What we do

People

From office manager to warehouse supervisor. Financial to industrial. In-house or remote. Manpower understands that it's as much about fit as it is about skills. And we know how to find the best passive and active candidates for all types of jobs and industries.

Training

Through our Training and Development Center, Manpower provides free online skills training to each of our permanent placements for six months after hire date. We offer more than 4,000 courses on subjects like workplace communication, software instruction, business management and more. Each course serves as a powerful on-the-job reference tool and a means to refresh old skills or teach new ones.
